

MEITHEAL - GRÚPA DAOINE AG OBAIR LE CHÉILE

A NATIONAL PRACTICE MODEL FOR ALL
AGENCIES WORKING WITH CHILDREN,
YOUNG PEOPLE AND THEIR FAMILIES

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Meitheal Model and supporting documentation are primarily informed by the experiences of the Identification of Need (ION) Project in Sligo Leitrim and the Limerick Assessment of Needs (LANS) Project in Limerick City. These initiatives, and the Meitheal in turn, are informed by the Scottish Government's National Practice Model and the UK Common Assessment Framework.

The overall Child and Family Agency Family Support Programme of work has been supported by The Atlantic Philanthropies.

INTRODUCTION

The Working Together for Children Initiative (2011) led by the Department of Children and Youth Affairs (DCYA) provides the mandate and impetus for more integrated working between relevant agencies to improve developmental outcomes for all children. The Child and Family Agency Act 2013 provides for the bringing together of a range of existing services to children and families into one agency. The Agency's functions will include maintaining and developing support services, including support services in local communities in order to support and promote the development, welfare and protection of children and to support and encourage the effective functioning of families. In so doing the Agency will promote enhanced inter-agency cooperation to ensure that services for children are co-ordinated and provide an integrated response to the needs of children and their families. The Act also provides that the principles of the best interests of the child and of participation are applied to the Agency's work.

In order to facilitate integrated working at the front line there is a need to develop a common approach to practice across all agencies that touch on the lives of children and families. A common approach to practice will help to ensure the participation of parents and children in all matters affecting them and promote inter-professional learning. Meitheal is an old Irish term that describes how neighbours would come together to assist in the saving of crops or other tasks. In this context Meitheal is a National Practice Model to ensure that the needs and strengths of children and their families are effectively identified and understood and responded to in a timely way so that children and families get the help and support needed to improve children's outcomes and realise their rights. The model is also intended to avoid duplication and particularly the need for families to repeatedly retell their story. This document envisages that in time, system-wide baseline and follow-up standardised measures will help demonstrate the effectiveness of multi-agency working. The Meitheal Model is a key driver of the development of an area-based approach to prevention, partnership and family support through local area pathways as part of the National Service Delivery Framework of the Child and Family Agency. This document should be read in conjunction with the Guidance for the Implementation of an Area Based Approach to Prevention, Partnership and Family Support.

As a standardised approach, Meitheal aims to ensure that children and families receive support and help in an integrated and coordinated way that is easily accessible to them. It is normally targeted at those children with unmet additional needs which, if left unmet, place children at risk of poor outcomes. Meitheal can be utilised by all practitioners in different agencies so that they can communicate and work together more effectively to bring together the requisite range of expertise, knowledge and skill to meet these needs at the earliest opportunity.

The Meitheal Model will be led and coordinated by the Child and Family Agency (The Agency) and will ensure families who do not require children and family social work intervention receive preventative support.

Multi-agency models of assessment and intervention have been trialled in two sites in Ireland: the Identification of Need process in Sligo/Leitrim and Donegal (ION) and the Limerick Assessment of Need System (LANS). These initiatives were themselves heavily influenced by the UK Common Assessment Framework (CAF), initially developed in North Lincolnshire and the My World Triangle developed by the Scottish Government. The Meitheal National Practice Model has been informed primarily by the ION and LANS projects, but also the work undertaken by the National Educational Welfare Board, One Child, One Plan, the Child Health Needs Assessment Framework process (Midlands); Women's Aid Early Identification of Domestic Violence Work with the Family Support Agency; the Mol on Óige initiative in Mayo and Roscommon and the Young People at Risk (YPAR) model and Inter Agency Working Agreement in Dublin City North.

Meitheal is quite simply a model of practice through which agencies change the nature of their existing work; In this model, a Lead Practitioner identifies a child's and their families' needs and strengths and then, if the identified needs require it, brings together a team around the child to deliver preventative support that is outcomes-focused, planned, documented and reviewed over time. The support offered should be planned in a highly participatory manner and directed by the child or young person and their family. Meitheal is both the overall name for the practice model and, specifically the Irish name that equates to the team-around-the-child concept.

The principles underpinning the Meitheal Model are:

- Parents are made aware at the outset that child protection concerns in relation to their child or children will be referred to the Children and Families Social Work service in line with Children First Guidance, 2011.
- It is a voluntary process - all aspects - from the decision to enter this process, to the nature of information to be shared, outcomes desired, support delivered, agencies to be involved to the end point of the process - are led by the parents/ caregivers and child.
- A Meitheal meeting cannot take place without the involvement of at least one parent.
- The Meitheal Model looks at the whole child in an holistic manner, in the context of his or her family and environment. It takes into account strengths and resilience as well as difficulties and needs.
- It privileges the voices of the parent/ carer and child, recognising them as experts in their own situations and assisting them to identify their needs and ways of meeting them.
- The Meitheal model is aligned with the wider Child and Family Support Agency Service Delivery Framework.
- The Meitheal Model should be outcomes-focused and should be implemented through a Lead Practitioner.

MAIN FORMS

Appendix 1 provides sample versions of the forms required to operate the Meitheal Model. The forms are designed to assist practitioners to identify and meet the needs and strengths of children and families. The forms included are:

- A Preventative Support Request Form
- A Strengths and Needs Record Form
- A Planning and Review Form
- A Closure and Feedback form

These forms are intended to help local areas set up the Meitheal Model and to ensure a degree of standardisation so that children and their families receive coherent and integrated support no matter where they live. The forms are also designed to encourage the participation of children and parents in the Meitheal Model. The forms are not designed to be overly prescriptive or to create a bureaucratic process, and should never become an obstacle to families receiving the support they need.

Appendix 2 provides optional additional forms that are not essential but have been identified as beneficial. These are:

- An Outcomes Checklist¹
- A Translator Confidentiality Form

More supports to implementation will follow, including a Toolkit for Practitioners, guides for parents, children and young people and practitioners, as well as a national standardised training and development programme.

¹ The outcomes checklist also serves as a baseline and follow up measure of the child's situation relative to the 5 national outcomes. It has been adapted from the Outcomes Framework, Westmidlands Children's Commissioning Partnership, 2008, available at http://www.londondevelopmentcentre.org/cms/site/docs/The_West_Midlands_Outcomes_Framework_\(April_2008\)%5B1%5D.pdf%5B1%5D.pdf)

STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE

This section provides details of the Meitheal Model to be operated under the leadership of the Agency. It provides local areas with a three-stage approach, with the overall process broken down into a series of steps (see process diagram below). The guide is intended to inform all practitioners working with children and families about the model, and to guide a Lead Practitioner in carrying out their role. The stages and steps below begin when it is clear that a family does not reach the threshold necessary for social work intervention. However, if a child protection concern arises Children First Guidance and legislation must be followed. The step- by-step guide specifically focuses on the following areas:

Stage 1: Preparation

Step 1: Consider whether a Meitheal is necessary?

Step 2: If at any stage you have child protection concerns follow Children First Guidance

Step 3: Introduce the Meitheal Model to the family

Step 4: Pre-Meitheal checks with CFSN Coordinator

Stage 2: Discussion

Step 5: Identification of needs and strengths

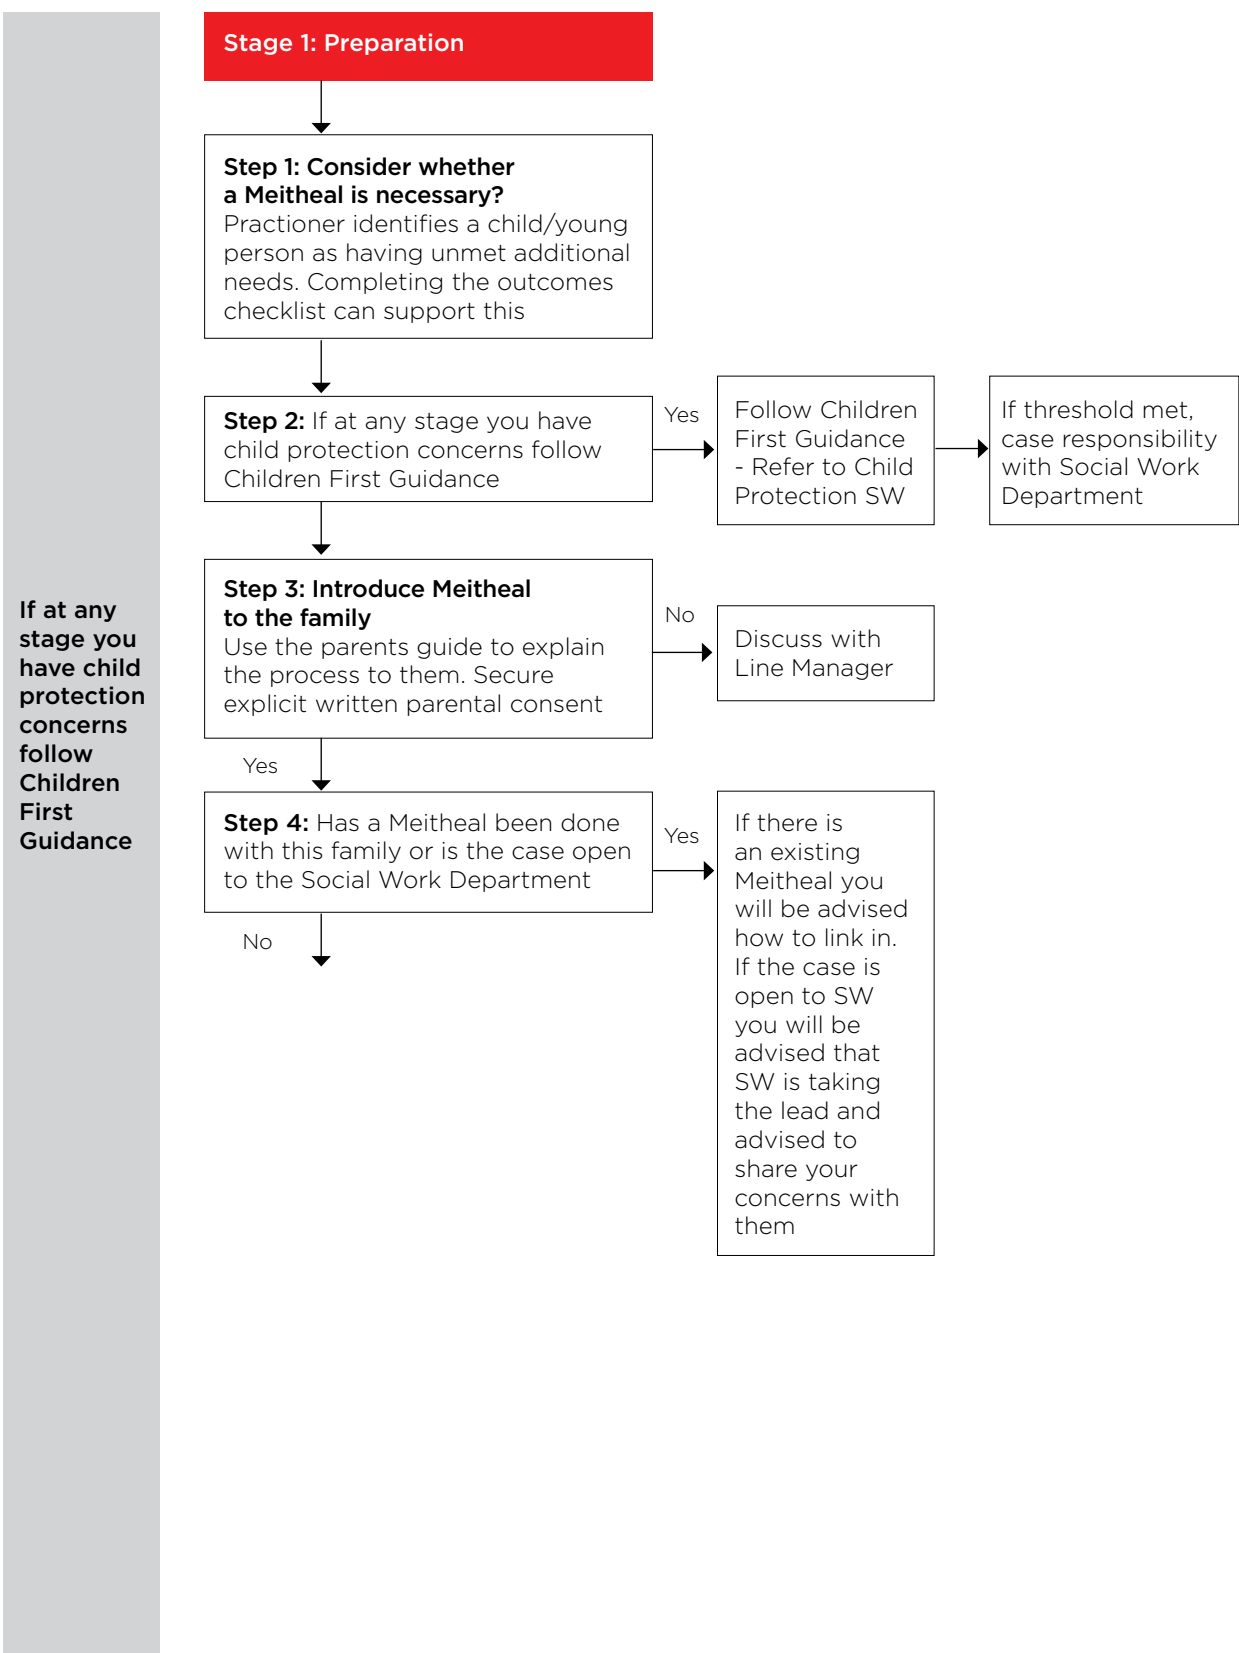

Step 6: Consider appropriate response

Stage 3: Delivery

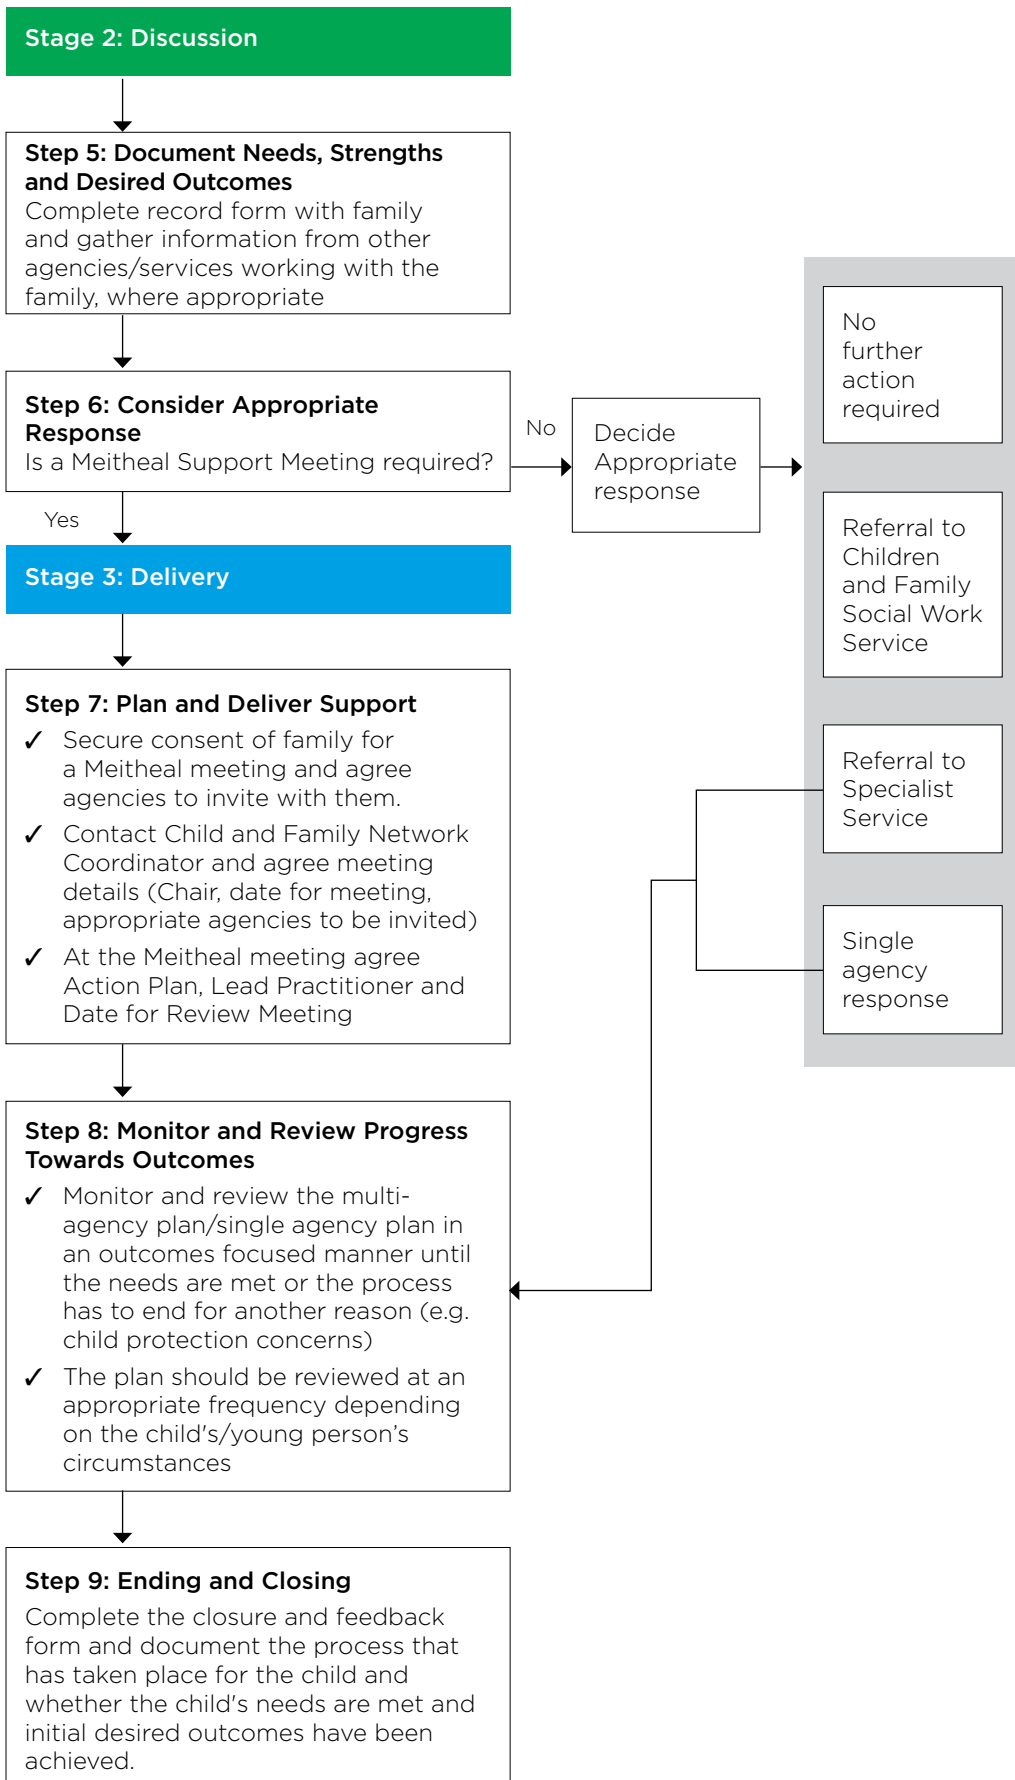

Step 7: Plan and deliver support

Step 8: Monitor and review progress

Step 9: Ending and closing

If at any stage you have child protection concerns follow Children First Guidance

STAGE 1 – PREPARATION

If at any stage during the operation of the Meitheal Model a practitioner has child protection concerns then the Children First Guidance, 2011 must be followed.

Step 1: Consider whether a Meitheal is necessary?

- Meitheal is about preventative support where children have unmet additional and/or complex needs that need to be responded to, but who do not require children and family social work intervention is not required.
- You do not need to undertake a Meitheal with every child you are working with – children who are progressing well or have needs that are already being responded to do not require a Meitheal.
- Similarly, you don't need to do a Meitheal where you have identified the child's needs and your service can meet them, or you know how to get the required help from another service, using established procedures.
- You might decide to undertake a Meitheal when you have concerns about how well the child is progressing; when their needs are unclear and/or broader than the remit of a single agency provider; where a range of services are involved but there is no clear overall plan for the child, or when the child/ family raises concerns with you in relation to the child's progress.
- When you are unsure whether a Meitheal is needed or not, the Outcomes Checklist can be used to help you make the decision. It also guides your conversation with parent(s) in explaining the reasons why you think a Meitheal would be of benefit to their child.
- It will also allow you to establish a baseline measure of where the child or young person is, relative to the 5 National Outcomes set out by the DCYA.

- This exercise can then be repeated when the Meitheal is being closed in order to assist with the measurement of progress towards outcomes.
- Additional guidance on how to complete the Outcomes checklist will be provided in the Meitheal toolkit and will be covered in Meitheal training.

Step 2: If at any stage you have child protection concerns follow Children First Guidance

- Keeping children safe is everyone's business. Children First, 2011 stipulates that society has a duty to care towards children and requires everyone working to be alert to the possibility of abuse.
- If at any stage you have child protection concerns follow Children First Guidance.
- Whether or not a referral under Children First is required is not always clear, and referrers are encouraged under Section 3.4.2 of Children First to consult Children and Family Services in relation to their concerns.

Step 3: Introduce Meitheal to the Family

- Use the Parent's Guide to introduce Meitheal to the parent(s). Explain that Meitheal is a Practice Model that it is used to identify their child's strengths and needs and recognises that parents want what is best for their child to grow, develop and be happy.
- If they are interested in Meitheal, you should explain about the checks that need to be undertaken and secure their consent for the checks to take place. It is essential to secure written parental consent for the checks and their engagement in the overall Meitheal Model before the Meitheal can proceed any further.
- Parental consent is secured in writing using the Meitheal Preventative Support Request Form.
- If the parent(s) do not consent to the Meitheal, you should have a discussion with your Line Manager to decide on the appropriate course of action to take - there may be scope to discuss the parents' fears/ concerns about Meitheal further with them and to overcome the barriers to their engagement.

Step 4: Pre- Meitheal checks with the CFSN Coordinator

- Once parental consent has been secured, the next step is to check with the Child and Family Network Coordinator to determine whether the Meitheal can proceed. You will need to provide the following details for the check to be undertaken: Child's name; address; gender; date of birth; parent's name.
- If an existing Meitheal is in place or has recently been in place for the child, the CFSN Coordinator will link you to the Lead Practitioner so that you can discuss how best to link with the Meitheal.
- The CFSN Coordinator will also check with the Child and Family Social Work Service to see if the case is open to that system. If the case is open to Social Work, you will be informed of this and advised not to proceed with the Meitheal, as it is important that families not be involved in parallel processes. The CFSN Coordinator will inform you of the Social Worker assigned to the case, so that you can make contact with them to discuss your concerns and/or input into the child's plan. It is likely there will still be a need for supportive interventions from community based services.

STAGE 2 – DISCUSSION

Step 5: Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form

- The Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form enables you to develop a snapshot picture of the child's life at a particular moment in time. It is a holistic framework and it collects information on the three domains of the My World Triangle (see diagram below).
- This information is collected through structured conversations/ discussions with the parent(s) that support them to tell their story and to identify any concerns they have in relation to their child.
- Information can also be collected, with parental consent, from key services supporting the child/ family, as agreed in the Preventative Support Request Form.
- It is also important to collect the views of the child/young person, where possible.
- Once you have collected the information, you should then organise it and record it within the headings contained in the Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form.
- You should then provide a copy of the Draft Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form to the parent(s) and have a discussion with them to complete/ finalise it.
- Send a copy of the completed Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form to the Child and Family Network Coordinator.

MY WORLD TRIANGLE

The whole health and development of the child or your person

Acknowledgment to the Scottish Government

Step 6: Consider Appropriate Response

- Once the Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form is finalised, you should then, in consultation with the parent(s), consider the appropriate response you need to take next.
- There are five possible responses, as follows:

- 1 Identified needs to be met by Lead Practitioner, working with other agencies as appropriate
- 2 Referral to Children & Family Social Work Service
- 3 Referral to single agency or specialist service
- 4 No further action required
- 5 Multi-agency response - call a Meitheal Support Meeting

- In some instances, more than one of the above responses may be required- for example, a multi-agency response and a referral to specialist service may be needed. In such an instance the specialist service can join the Meitheal for the period of time required to meet the child's needs.
- If a multi-agency response is required, discuss and agree with the parent(s) the appropriate services that should be included in the process.
- Record parental consent to include additional services and to share information with them on the Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record form. This can be done by naming the agency and having the parent initial and date their inclusion.

STAGE 3 – DELIVERY

Step 7: Plan and Deliver Support

The For multi-agency responses:

- CFSN Coordinator will work with you to secure a chair for the multi-agency meeting (if required).
- The purpose of the multi-agency meeting is to agree the following:

1 Action Plan – identify who is doing what, by when, and the outcomes to be achieved. The actions should be based on the identified strengths and needs of the child through the Meitheal Needs Record Form.

2 Lead Practitioner

3 Date for the next Review Meeting

- Parental expectations - the Lead Practitioner should have ongoing contact with the family to ensure that the Plan remains relevant to the strengths and needs of the child and that the family, both child and parents, are supported as active participants in the Meitheal.
- A copy of the action plan must be sent to all the partners to the plan, including the parent(s) and the CFSN Coordinator, within 10 working days.

For single agency responses:

- Identify and implement your single agency response that will meet the child's identified needs.
- Maintain engagement with the child and family.

Step 8: Monitor and Review Progress

- Implement and review the action plan for the child/young person to check if their needs are being met and/or if changes or additional actions are required.
- It is recommended that Review Meetings be organised based on the needs of the child and their action plan. In some instances, Review Meetings will take place every 4-6 weeks, while in others they will not need to be as frequent. It is recommended, however, that the child's action plan be reviewed at least every three months.
- All actions contained within the Action Plan should be reviewed and revised accordingly at each meeting.
- It is important to continue to identify who is responsible for specific actions and the timeframe for their delivery.
- Monitor and review progress towards outcomes in single agency responses in the same way you would a multi-agency intervention.

Step 9: Ending and Closing

- A key focus of the Meitheal Model is to identify and meet children's needs at the earliest opportunity possible. Throughout the supportive intervention, practitioners should aim to meet needs and plan for the family to be supported through universal service provision, therefore ending the need for Meitheal involvement.
- The Meitheal does not have a defined end stage, as this must be assessed in terms of the individual child and their situation. It should not, however, be allowed to drift indefinitely, and practitioners should consider the viability of continuing the Meitheal engagement beyond a year. Drift can be avoided by adopting an outcomes focused approach.
- A review of the supportive intervention should be undertaken when the Meitheal Action Plan has been in place for a year and the Meitheal has not yet been closed. This will help to clarify what progress has been made and to inform the decision on whether to close the Meitheal or not. Should the Meitheal continue, it will help to re-focus the work of the Meitheal on the desired outcomes for the child for a further time-limited period.
- It is important to focus on an exit plan for the Meitheal and to refer children and families to relevant universal services, as appropriate.
- Each Meitheal should have a closure and feedback stage, which is recorded on the Meitheal Closure and Feedback Form. This should document where progress towards an outcome has occurred and/or explain if the initial desired outcomes changed or have not been achieved.

At all stages of the Meitheal:

- If you have any concerns about the child, you should follow Children First Guidance and your own organisation's Child Protection Policies and Procedures.
- Consult your own line manager or designated person for support with decision-making as required.
- Consult with the CFSN Coordinator for support with the Meitheal Model and with information sharing.
- If a fundamental change occurs, new strengths and needs should be considered to ensure the support offered remains appropriate.
- Completed Meitheal documentation should be circulated to all relevant partners, including parent(s) and the CFSN Coordinator within ten working days.

THE FOLLOWING KEY CONCEPTS ARE INTENDED TO ENSURE A COMMON UNDERSTANDING NATIONALLY OF THE CORE COMPONENTS OF THE MEITHEAL MODEL.

4.1

LEAD PRACTITIONER

The role of the Lead Practitioner in the Meitheal Model is: to invite the parent to initiate the Meitheal; to complete the Record Form with the family (with the active participation of the parent(s)/ carer(s) and, if appropriate, young person; to attend all Meitheal Support Meetings, and to act as a guide to the family throughout the supportive intervention. The Lead Practitioner should be the person:

- 1 With the most contact/envisaged contact
- 2 With the capacity to take on the role
- 3 Preferred by the family/young person
- 4 International research indicates that practitioners are sometimes reluctant to take on the mantle of Lead Practitioner. It is essential for the success of this Model that members of Child and Family Support Networks take on this vital leadership role.

MEITHEAL - TEAM AROUND THE CHILD/ YOUNG PERSON

The Team Around the Child/Young Person is, in effect, the Meitheal. It brings together parent(s) and a range of practitioners from the statutory and community and voluntary sectors to provide specific support and interventions to a specific child/young person and their family. The members of the Team Around the Child/Meitheal develop and deliver a tailored package of outcomes-focused interventions to meet the needs of the child/young person as identified through the Meitheal Strengths and Needs Record Form.

The Team Around the Child/Meitheal is not a multi-disciplinary team who work together all the time or a multi-agency group that discusses numerous families together. Rather, it is composed of a specifically selected group of practitioners who pop up and work together as needed to respond to the identified needs of a particular child/young person. It is a flexible team providing a tailored response.

Each practitioner involved in the Team Around the Child/Meitheal is responsible and accountable to their own agency for the services they deliver to children, young people and families through this process.

RECORDING, SHARING AND STORING MEITHEAL INFORMATION

Recording Meitheal Information:

The Meitheal forms provide a structure for recording information collected throughout the Meitheal supportive intervention.

Sharing Information through the Meitheal Model:

Information sharing is vital to the effective implementation of Meitheal, and parental consent is key to doing this in a safe manner. Transparency and accountability in information sharing is a critical aspect of the human rights based approach being applied in the Meitheal Practice Model. Sharing of information within the Meitheal process should take account of the eight golden rules of information sharing outlined below.

Storing Meitheal Information:

All information, whether held on hard copy or electronically, must be kept safe and secure. See Toolkit for more information on the safe sharing & storage of completed Meitheal forms and information.

Meitheal documents can be completed electronically but should not be transferred electronically. They should be sent by post to a named person, marked private and confidential.

Copies of all Meitheal documents must be provided to the CFSN Coordinator - this is to ensure quality assurance and management oversight. The original signed copy of the parental consent form must also be stored in the office of the CFSN Coordinator.

The following Eight Golden Rules for Information Sharing were developed by South Dublin Children's Services Committee, Interagency Case Working Sub-Committee, adapted by the Limerick Assessment of Needs initiative and are adopted here for the Meitheal National Practice Model:

- 1 Be open and honest with children and families from the outset about why, what, how and with whom information will or could be shared, and seek their agreement, unless it is unsafe or inappropriate to do so.
- 2 Always keep the safety and well-being of the child and of other children central to your considerations.
- 3 Always be clear about the purpose for which you have received the information and the purpose you are using it for - they should be the same.
- 4 Know the relevant policies in your agency in relation to confidentiality and information sharing and consult them as necessary. Seek advice if you are in any doubt, without disclosing the identity of the person.

The Child protection and Welfare Practice Handbook² has a few pointers in relation to communication and information sharing between agencies:

- Always check that what you said is understood in the way you intended it.
- Always check that you understand information in the way it was intended.
- Do not make any assumptions.

Remember that the Data Protection Act is not a barrier for sharing information but provides a framework to ensure that personal information is shared appropriately. The Data Protection Commissioner has confirmed that there is no impediment in law to sharing information between agencies working in the best interests of children and families where there is consent for the sharing of such information. In fact, it is both legal and necessary to do so under the Child Care Act 1991 and The Children Act 2001 and is protected by the Protection for Persons Reporting Child Abuse Act 1998 where such information is provided for welfare issues to the relevant statutory body.

Aim to share with consent except where this is not appropriate. Wherever possible, respect the wishes of those who do not consent to you sharing their confidential information. You may still share information without consent if, in your judgement, that lack of consent can be overridden in the vital interest of the child. You will need to base your judgement on the facts of the case.

Necessary, proportionate, relevant, accurate, timely and secure. Ensure that the information you share is necessary and relevant for the purpose for which you are sharing it, is shared only with those people who need it, is accurate and up to date, is shared in a timely fashion and is shared securely.

Keep a record of your decisions and the reasons for them – whether it is to share information or not. If you decide to share, then record what you have shared, with whom and for what purpose.

PARTICIPATION

The principle of participation is a basic principle of human rights, all individuals have the right to participate in and access information relating to the decision-making processes that affect their lives and well-being. In the context of the Meitheal, this applies both to parents and children and young people. The Agency Participation Strategy details the organisational commitment of the Agency and its partners to ensuring that children and young people participate in all matters affecting them. In relation to parents, it is intended that the application of the Meitheal Model forms a key aspect of the Agency approach to parenting support as set out in Investing in Families, Supporting Parents to Improve Outcomes for Children, 2013. Participation and partnership working are two of the key implementation principles of the Parenting Support Strategy. It is often challenging to translate a principle such as that of participation into practice. The Meitheal Model is intended to support practitioners to facilitate the participation of parents, children and young people. The Meitheal Toolkit and training will focus specifically on the practice skills required to support participation. The process of identifying strengths, needs and desired outcomes; of co-creating a support plan to achieve those outcomes; and of monitoring and reviewing that plan, present rich opportunity to encourage and facilitate the participation of parents, children and young people. For example the related practice of self-directed support planning can be introduced via the Meitheal Model.

"Self-Directed Support (SDS) is a term that describes the ways in which individuals and families can have informed choice about the way support is provided to them. It includes a range of options for exercising those choices. Through a co-production approach to agreeing individual outcomes, options are considered for ways in which available resources can be used so people can have greater levels of control over how their support needs are met, and by whom (Scottish Government, 2010)."³

³ Self-Directed Support: A National Strategy for Scotland, 2010 available at <http://www.scotland.gov.uk/Publications/2010/02/05133942/0>

LINKS WITH CHILDREN AND FAMILIES SOCIAL WORK SERVICES

The Meitheal National Practice Model and Children and Family Social Work operate distinct processes of support within the overall support system for children and families. These processes should be coordinated and not operate in parallel; therefore, local procedures must be in place between the Meitheal Model and the Social Work Department to ensure there is no duplication.

It is intended that operating the Meitheal Model will help to prevent child abuse and neglect and so reduce referrals to Social Work Services. However, if a family is referred from the Meitheal Model and accepted to Social Work Services it is intended that the documentation from the Meitheal will assist in the Social Work Assessment and avoid the family having to retell their story. It is also likely that the practitioners and services involved in the Meitheal will continue their supportive intervention under the leadership of the Social Work Department. This can be seen like a smooth passing of the baton that retains continuity for families. This will assist in providing a continuum of support that families experience as seamless and integrated.

Integrated Continuum of Support

All requests for support through Meitheal must be checked with the Social Work Department to ensure they are currently not 'open' to Social Work. More detailed guidance on governing the relationship between Meitheal, The Educational Welfare Services 'One Child' and Social Work Departments will be provided in the Toolkit. It is essential that this relationship of partners is guided by a common concern for the well being and rights of children and by the principle of the best interest of the child. It is not intended that families are 'bounced' between the two distinct processes.

CONCLUSION

This document has sought to introduce and describe the Meitheal – A National Practice Model for all agencies working with children, young people and their families. The implementation of this model requires a significant shift in culture and practice for many practitioners. However the desire and momentum for such change is common across many professions and organisations. Much of the work will be in the early stages of implementation as this new way of working is embedded. As stated, the Meitheal Toolkit and Training will be made available to support the implementation process.

Integrated working requires individuals to let go of some prior habits, associations and loyalties. However, it also has the potential to garner limited resources and bind previously disparate individuals and organisations around the common goal of improving outcomes and realising the rights of children, young people and their families.
